LITTLE GIRL'S VOICE:

My Dad's a doctor and he takes care of heroes every day. It takes a special person to do what he does.

Every day he sees people with different hurts and scars.

Small ones, big ones, complicated ones that never go away and others that are invisible to everybody else.

The scars aren't just on the outside. Sometimes my dad says people hurt more on the inside and you can't see those scars, those scars take a long time to heal.

Where my dad works, they make sure to know lots about the Veterans they treat. Like where they were hurt, what doctors have tried to help before, the medicines they have to take and other important stuff, so that they can be taken care of at other VA hospitals like his.

My dad always says every Veteran should be able to live a happy, healthy life. Because they risked their lives to protect and serve the United States of America.

My dad's a hero to a lot of people, but mostly he's my hero.

This is my dad.

LITTLE GIRL'S DAD:

Thank you honey!

Hey Kids, so who wants to be a doctor?

You, tell us why.
